1. Summary

The core purchase journey works correctly for the baseline account (`standard_user`): all 35 test cases pass in Chrome, and the automated subset also passes in Firefox.

When the same cases are run against the other demo accounts, 12 defects appear, 3 of them Critical. They block checkout (BUG-005, BUG-009) or show prices that differ from the amount charged (BUG-010).

Recommendation: release is acceptable for the baseline configuration only. The defects tied to the other accounts must be fixed and retested before those configurations go live.

2. Execution results: `standard_user` (baseline)

Metric	Value
Test cases planned	35
Executed	35 (100%)
Passed	35
Failed	0
Blocked	0
Automated runs (Playwright, CI)	36 / 36 checks passed (13 UI × Chrome, 13 UI × Firefox, 10 API)

5. Observations and improvement suggestions

1. Sort order is not kept. After opening a product and going back, the list returns to Name (A to Z). This isn't a requirement, but keeping the user's choice would be friendlier.
2. Console noise. Even for `standard_user`, the browser console logs failed resource requests (401 and 404) on every page. They don't affect the user, but they make real errors harder to spot and should be cleaned up.
3. Validation gap. BUG-008 shows that the checkout form can be submitted with a required field empty. Server-side validation of customer data is recommended.
4. Accessibility (not in scope). A future cycle should check keyboard-only navigation and screen-reader labels on the sort dropdown and the cart icon.

6. Exit criteria check

Criterion	Status
100% of planned test cases executed	✅ Met
100% of smoke / P1 cases pass for `standard_user`	✅ Met

Criterion	Status
No open Critical/High defects on the baseline account	✅ Met; all 12 defects are account-specific
All defects logged with evidence	✅ Met
